to the camp site, in preference to bringing them to the city and sending them two miles back to the camp. The troops for the St. Louis, however, will be brought directly to the city and put on board the ship, in order that she may get away to-morrow evening, if possible.

The Yosemite and the nine colliers originally intended for the Eastern Squadron are still at old Point, and there now seems to be no doubt that they will sail for Porto Rico with the expedition to leave on Tuesday. The Glacier will also go with the transports. The expected arrival of the soldiers to-morrow is anticipated by the citizens with no small degree of pleasure. The women of the city will prepare sandwiches and will have ready lemonade and ice-water. It is understood that the officer in charge of the camp will not permit the men to overrun the camp will not permit the men to overrun the city while they are here. The larks of the Michigan and Massachusetts regiments when passing through to Santiago several weeks ago will be prevented, if possible.

FLIGHT OF THE REFUGEES FROM THE CITY—SUFFERINGS OF THE WOM—EN AND CHILDREN.

[FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT OF THE TRIBUNE.]

El Caney, near Santiago de Cuba, July 7.—The many-sidedness of war continues to impress itself on the attention as the armistice continues. To-day comes the announcement that Santiago shall have forty-eight hours in which to surrender. Meantime, as far as actual fighting is concerned affairs are at a standstill. The

GENERAL BROOKE AND HIS STAFF UN-DER WAY-WHOLE FIRST CORPS EXPECTED TO GO.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TRIBUNE.] Chattanooga, Tenn., July 23.—General Brooke and his staff left Camp Thomas at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon for Newport News, and the command of the forces at Chickamauga was turned ever to Major-General J. F. Wade. The following composed the party of General Brooke: General Sheridan, chief of staff; Major Dean, acting aid; Lieutenant McKenna, aid; Lieutenant Castle, acting aid; Lieutenant-Colonel Richards, adjutant-general; Lieutenan; Vrooms, inspectorreneral; Lieutenant Goethals, engineer officer; Lieutenant-Colonel Huidekoper, chief surgeon; Lieutenant-Colonel Bockwell, chief ordnance officer; Lieutenant-Colonel Sharp, chief commissary; Lieutenant-Colonel Carson, chief quartermaster; Lieutenant-Colonel Hunter, judge-advocate; Lieutenant-Colonel Glassford, chief signal officer; Captain Williamson, assistant quartermaster; Captain Campbell, assistant quartermaster, and Major Mason, medical inspector.

General Brooke and his staff boarded a special train at Battlefield Station. The train consisted of one private car, two Pullman cars and one baggage car. General Brooke was accompanied by his guard to Newport News.

At 9:45 o'clock Company F. 8th United States Infantry, left camp in heavy marching order for Rossville, and later it was followed by Troop H, 6th United States Cavalry. These two commands boarded cars at Rossville and followed General Brooke's train. The guard is in charge of Captain W. L. Pitcher, of Company F. 8th United States Infantry, and Lieutenants Ryan and Heiberg, of the 6th United States Cavalry, They will constitute General Brooke's headquarters guard in Porto Rico.

The Signal Corps broke camp last night after dark and proceeded to Rossville, where the night was spent under shelter tents. This morning early it boarded cars and was off. Following the Signal Corps came the reserve ambulance and hospital companies, in charge of Lieutenant-Colonel Huidekoper, which left Camp Thomas at 6:30 o'clock this morning. There were many wagons and ambulances and much other freight to handle, and it was not all loaded until late in the afternoon.

To-morrow morning the following commands will go out, taking cars at Rossville: Battery

Will go out, taking cars at Rossville: Battery
B. Pennsylvania Artillery: Battery A. Illinois
Artillery: Battery A. Missouri Artillery, and 27th Indiana Battery.
In answer to a question as to whether or not any more resiments had been really placed under orders to go, General Sheridan, chief of staff, said that there had not been any moved except those that left yesterday.

WHAT GENERAL BROOKE SAYS.

"Will the whole of the First Corps, as it is now constituted, be ordered to the front?" was "Yes, I think it will go to the front." replied

"As a whole, with one order, or will the orders come at different dates" was asked.

To this the General leaned his head forward confidentially and said, "The First Corps will go out on one order."

the General.

Third Brigade, 1st New-Hampshire, 2d Missouri and 9th Pennsylvania.

The Third Brigade is the only one left in the First Division. This is General Frederick D. Grant's new brigade. General Grant is now sure to be pushed into the front of the battle, and he will be the next General to leave. With one or two exceptions all these regiments are entirely equipped. In cases where anything is lacking it is only of a minor nature, and will not hinder the regiment going forward on the expedition to Porto Rico.

As each bricade consists of about four thousand men, and as there are seven brigades to go out, this will cause a removal from Chickamauga of twenty-eight thousand men in addition to those already gone. It will require one hundred and fifty cars of all kinds for each brigade, or ten hundred and fifty cars for the brigade, or ten hundred and fifty cars for the seven brigades. To move one brigade a day is a big job, and unless the troops embark at both Rossville and Ringgold no more than this number can be handled daily. Then it will require at least a day between to collect cars, and it will take two weeks at the least to move the seven brigades.

FIVE TRANSPORTS LEAVE TAMPA.

Washington, July 23.-The War Department to-night received the following:

Tampa, Fla., July 23.

Tampa, Fla., July 23.

Adjutant-General, Washirgton.
The transports Arkadia, Whitney, Miller, Flotilda and Cherokee, with General Schwan's headquarters, sailed between 10 and 12:30 today, with two light batteries, 7th Artillery, one troop 2d Cavalry, two companies 11th Infantry, full regiment 19th Infantry and two sections of the general pack train. The Mohawk, which can easily overtake these boats, cannot sail before 10 o'clock to-morrow. It will carry ten companies of the 11th Infantry, about six hunmpanies of the 11th Infantry, about six hundred pack animals, the brigade ambulance train and Red Cross ambulances.

Key West, Fla., July 23 .- On Thursday last the Mangrove captured the Spanish sloop Aguldita off Boca de Sagua, fifteen miles from Cruz del Padro. The sloop carried a crew of four men, who at sight of the approaching gunboat, leaped overboard and swam to the shore. The Aguldita's cargo consisted of dyewood, a small lot of food supplies and $25 in Spanish silver. She will be brought here by the Uncas to-morrow.

For six days and nights the soldiers have been digging trenches. To the rear, a Michigan regiment and one battalion of the 71st New-York have been widening and improving the read, toiling in the blistering sun. Wagon teams and long lines of pack mules, starting before daybreak, have kept at their task until late at night, carrying ammunition and food from Siboney, on the coast, to the camp on the hills overlooking Santingo-a thirteen or fourteenmile trip, and such miles!

All of last night one or two regiments were plying scythe and axe, clearing a ten-acre field in front of the American rifle-pits to get what their side has been accustomed to-an open battle-field.

SUFFERINGS OF THE REFUGEES.

Yet another aspect of war shows itself to That is the share of its sufferings that fall to women and children and old men. Formal notice of the prospective bombardment of Santiago led to the sending out of the noncombatants. Some of these heard of the coming danger night before last, and after such preparations as circumstances suggested started out in the early morning hours. The course of most of them was to the north, to El Caney, village about four miles from Santiago which was captured by the Americans on July | two, seeing a stranger, struck up a mineing gait 1. There was news that food would be supplied here by the invading foreigners. The stream of | but was ghastly in the surroundings. Some refugees grew with the morning hours, and ntinued all yesterday, last night and to-day It is not possible to give an accurate estimate of the number. Perhaps fifteen thousand or even twenty thousand would not be too high Before the war Santiago had about fifty thousand inhabitants, but it is thought that these figures were decreased to about thirty thousand by the time of the battle of July 1. While El Caney received most of the fleeing hordes, thousands went to San Pedro and a dozen other places in the region round about. El Caney, wever, was filled with them. It was a place of five hundred inhabitants originally, around an open square. At the northern end of this is the church, which in the stress of military necessity became a fort, and is now a hospital. To the south is the municipal building, and on either side are the better class of houses and shops, with their roofs of Spanish tiling and their broad plazzas. Grouped around Yesterday the Government sent twenty-five hundred rations by pack train. They were apparently not enough to give all a single meal, although reckoned to feed that number of soldiers an entire day. Perhaps some got more than their share, but many are declaring that they have not tasted food for two days.

Another pack train is expected this afternoon The Red Cross has also made a distribution today, but its supply is now exhausted. A few of the better class of refugees and some correspondents have aided the representatives of the Red Cross in the work. From a well in the churchyard they are drawing water for the clamoring crowd. Undoubtedly some food was brought from Santiago, although the poor people could have had little, as they had been bordering on starvation for some time.

A number of men went out into the woods for mangoes. Fortunately this fruit is just at its pippin apple, and when ripe is a gorgeous yel-Not all Americans relish the taste at first, but usually acquire it if persistent. Not only are mango trees abundant, but they bear most bountifully. In the present state of affairs the mango has been an incalculable boon.

CROWDING OF EL CANEY HOUSES. The houses that had been forsaken were so crowded that half the persons in them could not have slept on the floor. Many families camped out in a rude fashion. They had brought bundles of household effects with them, and by tying sheets and counterpanes on stakes secured a little privacy and shut out the rays of the sun. Of privacy, however, there was little. In the circumstances, this was no great evil to most of the people, but there were families of refinement who must have suffered. Perhaps the majority were wholly or in part of negro blood. Some of their children were stark naked, even those of school age. Their wan bodies were pitifully emaciated. El Caney had been circled by rifle-pits in anticipation of the coming of the Americans, and was defended also by several forts. One of these was the square-towered old church. Its iron barred windows had been further strengthened by big wooden beams, and at three of its corners were round piles of masonry, with holes for the riflemen. The tower showed some traces of American shells. Inside, all furniture connected with the holy character of the place had been removed. What was left of several shrines still clung to the walls. A score of Spanish wounded were here, having been attended to by American surgeons. Some had died, and under the direction of the Rev. Dr. A. Diaz, of Havana, who has done evangelical work in the United States, were buried. Captain Finley, of the 9th Cavalry, with his troop, was on guard at the church. With the difficulty that the Commissary De partment is having in getting sufficient rations to the men in the trenches, it was really a piece of uncommon liberality to supply food to the refugees at El Caney. Of course, it will be impossible to keep the thousands fed at that distance from the base, Siboney, so thousands have been moving toward that place to-day. More will doubtless follow.

On the road from General Shafter's head-markers to El Caney the misery and suffering due to the flight from Santiago were far more impressive than in the village itself. The highway north from Santiago is broad and good. From El Caney to the headquarters is six miles, and the road is horrible in stretches. The seven or eight miles from headquarters into Sibone; are not quite as hard to cover. In a walk this morning from the Guama River, near which are the Fifth Army Corps headquarters, to El Caney, hundreds of the people who had left Santiago were encountered. They came in families and in parties of twenty to fifty. Seldom was there a clear space be tween the groups of more than one hundred or two hundred yards. Men were few, except the aged. All who were strong enough to bore bundles or household articles. Some of the children had brought their toys. One old woman had a green parrot perched on her shoulder. Negroes were in the majority. Some of the kindly old gray-haired men would have

It was along this way that the weary women and children came, staggering and slipping under their burdens. One of the few men was a engineering and labor to provide New-York with Cuban soldier. He carried a baby and a bundle; his wife shouldered his rifle. Nearly all the women wore white gowns, often of the pattern known in the United States as "Mother Hubbard" wrappers. The skirts were stiff with mud to the knee, in spite of efforts to raise them. Under the load of a baby and a parcel of garments the dress could not always be looked after. Many were barefooted, carrying shoes and stockings in hand to save them from the sticky mud.

It was curious to see the little evidences of feminine nature that occasionally cropped out. A few women were plainly powdered. One or that had doubtless been effective in Santiago, trailed their skirts in the mud in modesty until he passed. At the fords all waded, the adults carrying the children. Some of these tots were crying with fatigue and hunger. Others danced gayly along as if they were in a May party.

The progress of some of the aged was snalllike. It must have taken over an hour to go a mile. Apparently every step was a great effort

CAVALRY ORDERED TO PORTO RICO.

Camp Alger, Va., July 23 -An order was reseived at Camp Alger to-day directing that the five troops of cavalry stationed at General Graham's command proceed to Porto Rico as rapidly as possible. These troops are A and C. New-York Volunteers, and A. B and C. Pennsylvania Volunteers. The order directs that they proceed to Newport News for embarkation, and if transportation will permit will go with Hains's brigade. The command will take their horses and be fully equipped. Thirty days' rations for the men and ten days' forage for the horses and five hundred rounds of ammunition for each man will be taken. If impracticable to go with General Hains's troops, the command will go into camp on arrival at Newport News and will report the fact to headquarters. There are 530 men in all in these troops. The order was unexpected, but it took the men only one hour to get ready to move. It is expected that the troops will reach Newport News about noon to-morrow. Captain C. S. W. ARRIVAL OF THE RELIEF.

The United States Army hospital ship Relief arrived here yesterday from Santiago with 125 younded soldiers on board. It was three weeks ago yesterday that she left this port for Cuba, having on board an efficient staff of surgeons in charge of Major Torney, of the United States Army, and a corps of trained nurses. The ship was equipped with all the modern surgical appliances, and was expected to do good service in aiding and comforting the sick and wounded. Her return to this port, after having taken are of 285 soldlers during her first three weeks in commission, shows that she was well named. She is still held in quarantine, and will not be released until late to-day. This is not because board are free from fever and have no complaints to make as to the food or care, but because the Health Officer of the Port, Dr. Doty, a Cuban port, it would be safer to hold her until that time had expired as a precaution against yellow fever developing among the men.

The Rehef had on board during her stay at Santiago ferred to the Seneca, the Hudson and the Solace before the Relief sailed for this port. She left Siboney on July 20, making the passage in the quick time of three days and twenty-one hours. She encountered only fine weather throughout her entire trip. When she reached Quarantine Dr. Doty, in the Health Officer's heat, went alongside of her and received the report from Major Torney stating that none of the men were suffering from fever.
